

Let us look at what the left-click button does

1) Point at objects on the screen

We can point at things on the monitor screen. To do this, we move around the mouse. The pointer moves as the mouse moves.

2) Select objects

To open a file, folder, or software we have to select it. The left-click button selects an object on the screen. The pointer must be on the object or icon we want to select.
